FILL UP OLD REGIMENTS .- There is a demofor more troops immediately. The army must be etrengthened; this should be done in the casiest, quickest, and most effective way, and that way, we think, ie to fill up the old regiments. Meny of these are now greatly reduced-some have only from 250 to 400-and some still less. The Boston Bulletin says it is plain that the general efficien cy of a regiment which is composed in part of men that bave seen service and in part of recent recrnits, is greatly superior to one in which all the men are fresh. If only a few men in each company are "veterans" the new accessions of rank and file will much more quickly fall into sol dierly weys. The tone and reputetion of the regiment, if It is a good one, will he kept up by its traditions. New men will prefer to join regiment that has earned honors, will take pride in the privilegs of associating with its veterans and feel greater confidence in obtaining success and achieving honor for themselves. The ele ment of home or iocel pride, too, which is a bond of strength in every regiment, end connects it intimetaly with the community where it was reised will have great influence in promoting rapid on listments. New men require capable, experienced officers. At this stage of affairs no one whatever, from corporal to colonel, should be in such command, if he has not smelt gnnpowder in actue hattle. Again in this wey, as the New York Post remerks, there would be easily secured those promotions from the ranks which give pride and ambition to the soldier, end reward bim for extraordinary services. Our present system actu because only whole regiments are called out. But if a shattered rogiment were reinforced at homa, as a matter of conrect be officers killed or disabled would be replaced by the best of the old non-commissioned officers, while the brevest privates would fill np the spere corporals' and sergesnte' places. We hope, therefore, the oid regiments will be filled up ln preference to celling out new ones; end that so fer as new ones are raised not a single officer, commissioned or noncommissioned, will be appointed, who has not

DRAD BODY FOUND .- It will be remembered that during the flood of January last, the dam, erected by the contractors to aid in the enlargement of the canal, wes swept away, and that the hody of Mr. Isaec Fulton was huried in the ruins. The eccident occurred on Sunday, the 19th of January, end, although a vigorous search wee mede for the body et the time, it was not found. On Tuesday, however, while the workmen were engaged upon the canal, the body wes found and recognized, deeply buried in the ruins of the old dam. It was carefully taken out and restored to his family who reside in New Albany.

PHOTOGRAPHS FOR FAMILY BIBLES .- Messre. Whilt & Yost, the well known Bible publishere of 805 Market street, Philadelphia, have made a new application of miniature photograph portraits, which shows the utilitarian bent of the inventive which is conformable to the standard of the American Bible Society, they insert, as usual, blark leaves, enltably hoaded and divided (and sememind of America. In their Bibles, the text of of births, merriages, end deaths. Such records, in a family Bible, constitute a good evidence in all her household should see the wondere of the the novelty (patent applied for) of placing several card boards, perforated for the reception of small photograph portraits, to follow the femily register, thus accompanying this record with resemblances of the loved once whose names are entered there. The idea is ingenious, and will become popular-it is surprising that no one has ment for $4,000, as ponalties for not carrying life thought of it before. It is capable of being epplied to Bibles of all sizes. The Press has seen a spacimen which is a superhly-bound quarto illustrated after the Register, for the reception of thirty-two cartes-de-misste. These places are so prepared that, even whan all the photographe are incerted, there is no apparent addition to the bulk of the Secred Volume. Whilt & Yost can supply sditione of the Bible, thus prepared, of all sizes and have been caught, the catch in a single day aver prices. Of this vast number, many have distinguished thomselves, and our own Philadelphia is in no wise in the rear of the other portions of the Commonweslth, either as regards the number of more she has contributed, or the distinction they have won by their patriotic gallantry in the field.

But it seems to me that our journels have strangely overlooked one of the most brilliant episodes of the war, considering that the commander ard here of the occasion is both a Pennsylvanian and Philadelphun. I allude to Col. Ellel, of the Rum fleet, who, in conjunction with the graph sats under commander Davis, captured and dustroyed the whole of the rebol fleet of rams and gunbats, with n single exception, in the recent dustroyed the whole of the rebel fleet of rams and gunboats, with a single exception, in the recent ongagement in front of Memphis. The chief interest in this aurpicious result arises from the practical confirmation of a scientific principle in naval warfare, with the truth and force of which Col. Ellet has long labored to indoctrinate the Government and people.

It is now more than siven years since Colonel Ellet became impressed with the conviction that iron-clad steamers and steam rams were the only reliable meane of either attack or defence in naval warfare, and that by the adoption of the prigiple we should render ourselves impragnable in i will not speak of the daring conrege of Col. Ellet in making himself a target for the fire of the enough, in order, personelly, to note the offect of the teriple blows inflicted by his rams upon the gunboate of the rebels, for bravery is the hirthright of every loyal American, and is illustrated as gloriously in the private collier as in the General who commands him. But I desire to impress upon the public mind the knowledge of the fact that these were hastily prepared 2000den rams. A banquot has just been given in honor of Sheridan Knowles by the chief citizens of Cork. The veteran dramatist, who is now in his seventy. eighth year, has been staying at an hydropathic establishment in his native city, and is about returning to Scotland. In a speech io reply to a tonet, he narrated the history of his life, his father's departure from Cotk, his settlement in England, the generous kindness of his near relative, "i saw from the beach," to his own accompani-ment, with a touching earnestness and feeling that caused general emotion, especially in the us the numination of the most insignineant re-treat before Richmond, he has now so invested said city as to leave little else for the rebels to do but fight, and fight to the bitter erd. Should they attemp' to retreat Sonth, McClellan cun now head them off with an army south of Petersburg, which he can throw ecross the James river in e few hours, under cover of our gamboats. To re-

GUERILLA WARFARE AT THE SOUTH -The New Orleans True Dolta makes the following remarks as to some parties of marauders how wandering through Louisiana: Within the past tan days we have received Within the past tan days we have received numerona letters from the parishes on the river, above and below the citv, all deteiling with greater or leaser circumstantiality the dangers to which life and property on the plantations are exposed from the fugitiva Thags, whom a righteous ratribution has at length overtakan here. Below the city, on the river, those piratical assassins are now operating in skiffs, which they can easily and readily concast during the day, or when apprehensive of arrest and puntshment at the hands of the Federal anthorities; and at night they of the Federal anthorities; and at night they launch them, invade the queriers of the plantations, maltreating or tempering with the clave population, inciting them to outrage and lasurrection, whila they thomselves take everythin portable they can lay their hands on. The high eet praisa is due, and indeed universally accorded to the United States military anthorities in th tinde in grappling with them with a determina-tion to crush them onl forever, if in their power, during their atay here." These "Thugs," otherwise called "political bunditti," are, as an Eastern paper remarks, the gnerillas on whom the rebcls declare it their intention to depond; and these evils, from which a secessionist nowspaper is glad to have relief at the hands of the United States, are the legitimate results of a courso of action which the rebels as a class profess to regard as their Guerilla warfare everywhere degenerates easily into mere brigandage, hut it is probable that in the South the change would be even more rapid and easy than usual. Where there is a hale of colton the true gnerilla must barn it; where a mnn shows symptoms of Unionism he must be intimidated or punished; and where property promises to be of benefit to the government it must be destroyed or carried off. It is easy to see how, in earrying on such a system of operations hy irregular and irresponsible agents, personal hate or love of mischief or plunder will soon obtain their gratification under pretence of "patriotism," and that in a very short time the life and property of the secossionist will be as unsafo as those of his Union neighbor.

At the same time, we are constrained t doubt the justice and the propriety of such general orders as are said to have heen given by certain U. S. military authorities for the treatment of guerillas in Missouri, in Louisiana, and probably elsewhere. We refor to Southern troops, says: the orders that gnerillas, when taken, shall be executed upon the spot, after trial perhaps by a drum-head conrt-martial. There may he and unquestionably are some cases, though certainly not many, where men, acting as guerillas, do nothing that is not recognized by the regular laws of war. It seems to us that orders for the summary execution of guerillas should define with perfect clearness and precision what is to be considered as guerillaism within the meaning and intent of the orders. Assuredly i would be massacre to kill any small body o armed men sent out from a military force to destroy a bridge or to accomplish any other legitimate military object. It members of maranding and thieving hands are captured, let them have fair trials, and, upon proof of their connection with such bands, be made to suffer tho severest penalty, but wo should be very careful not to inaugnrate or countenance any system of violence and blood not recognized by the rules of legitimate warfare. Wo think that the military authorities of the country should carefully look to this matter and guard them clves against the possibility of miscon-

Tacre may have heen great necessity for stringency in this matter in the army of the Putomac for officers about Washington, having little to do in the way of campaigning last winter, possibly exceeded the army regulations and paid nnauthorized visits to their homes pending that inactivity. This state of affairs, onco allowed, may have required the prompt action of the War Department for its remedy, and hence this order, which, if enforced without modification, must result disastronsly to the it better recommend that the ruins of Tadmor army itself, besides dealing unjustly with many be put in good repair? of the bravest and most meritorious of our

The bell has hardly ceased to toll the funeral knell of one of Kentucky's bravest and most cherished sons, Capt. Henry Clay, whose career of promise was brought to a close by disease contracted in the service. Had he recovered sufficiently o move about, he would have been abliged to run the gauntlet of Cump Chase and take his chance with the rest. This proposition presupposes the fact that as fast as one set of officers fail in health othera now arises whether men can be had as handily as mules to fill the requirements of the seris one of the beauties of the contract system, which Secretary Stanton has decided to be the position between the volunteers and the Govcrnment. Of course this new order affects clunteer officers particularly, for they largely outnumber the regulars. We have looked at this subject in all its hearings, and we cannot see how the discipline of the army can be maintained, its morale preserved, or its ambition strengthened by carrying out General Order No. 61. If the yellow fever should decimate our army at the extreme South, or incidentally impair the health of our officers, their places could be supplied with new ones as long as the source of supply would last to raise the adequate numbers; but the failure of the source must be a mere question of time; for the young men of our country, to say nothing of the heads of families, will hardly enter a service which would east them off as soon as they were enfeebled by disesse or disabled by wounds. We are far from disposed to interfere with the orders of the War Department. We have great confidence in it generally, but in this instance we think a mistake has been made, and, thinking so, we protest against the injustice and iubumanity involved

Unlike the troops of the North, they have no been forced into the army to obtain a subsistence On the contrary, they have entered the army vol untarrity, and given up the comfortable subsistence which they were sure of at bome, for the purpose of serving their country.

That's about as cool a thing as we have lately seen, though we have seen a good many wonderfully cool nnes. Think of the statement that all the troops in the rebel armies have entered the service voluntarily! Have we not all read the conscription act, mustering into the ranks every male in the Southern Confederacy capable of bearing arms? What was the significance of all those loud and constant appeals of the Southern press to the people to volunteer and avoid the disgrace of being forced into the ranks? Is anything more notorious than that the Southern sold ers, who enlisted for a year, were refused permission to go home at the year's expiration, and that whole regiments were put under guard for insisting upon compliance with the conditions of

> Perhaps the Richmond Dispatch will next tell us that all the persons in the Southern penitentiaries are there of their own choico.

It is evident that there is very soon to be a highly important battle in the valley of the Shenandeah, Gen. Jackson having been greatly reinforced, and having, at the latest dates, commenced another murch in the direction of Winchester in the expectation of enconstering our forces. We have no doubt valley, and, when we consider what great results may depend upon the issue of the battle, to Richmond, and, with a strong trust in the

Gen. Butler is following up his energetie proclamations in New Orleans with energetic action. When men violate their paroles, he hangs or shoots them without mercy. His general course has been admirable, but all must admit that his order relative to the women was a dishonor to our national character.

M. C. GALLAWAY, P. M. M. C. GALLAWAY, P. M.
Under the helief that a "full and fair settlement" with the Faderal Government would be made by Mr. Gallaway, the hoxholders genarally paid their renta and dues. But the Confederate gentleman, true to the principles of secession and its leeders, put avery cent of the money thus collected into his owe pocket, and afterwards neal it to build a house directly opposite the post-office hallding. The amount, of which he robbed the Government that had kept him in a lucrative position for four years, was between ten and fif the Government that had kept him in a lucrativa position for four years, was between ten and fit teen thousand dollars. As bis real eatate is in the city of Memphis, and is eaid to be "unancumbered," it is hoped the Federal authorities will "relieve" him of further claim to it. He stands convicted as a traitor and a thief, and if such men are parmitted to go unpunished, the legitimale object of the war will never be attained.

It was not alone in box rent and newspaper postage that Gallaway swindled the Federal Government. He swindled it upon a large will he substituted in their places, like Gov- scale in postage stamps. He wrote on to ernment mulcs on the march, and the question Washington, before his treason was known there, for stamps to the amount of several thousand dollars and obtained them. No vice. The Government does not want sick long afterwards, he wrote on for a large addiofficers; if they fall ill they do it at their own lioual amount. SCHOOL EXHIBITION. -The annual commence ment exercisas and exhibition of the Louisvilla Female High School will take place at Masonic Temple this evening, the exercises commencing at eight o'clock. The remarkable success of this department of our public school system for sevaral yeare has excited the admiration and sympathy of all citizens who are interested in the cause of education. It is no ordinary pleasure to witness from time to time the progress of the daughtats of Lonisville in the pursuit of knowledge, and we will have many displays to-night, both of the aptness of the teachers in the Famule High Scho and the proficiency of the pupils.

The gallant Grider, Colonel of the Ninth Kentucky Infantry, is in the city. Ha will spend a few days in Kentneky, und will then repair to the field. Of those who won unfading laurels at Shiloh, Col. Grider is ona of the most prominent. He, at the head, and in the lead, of his regiment, received, perhaps, the most terrible rebel charge sealed the victory to Buell and to the Federal discharged. arms. He has wou the lova of all true Kentuckians, and should share the highest boners they may have to bestow.

FEMININE RUDENESS .- Wa learn that three well-dressed and apparently raspectable women, in passing Gen. Boyle's Headquarters vectarday. took especial pains to manifest contempt for the inmates. Gen. Boyle, however, was not in. Wn understand he regrets that he was not. Ha has, Trustees will take place on Monday evening, the we are assured, set on foot inquiries as to the 7th July. Combined naval and military expeditions were, thorefore, fitted out in England to operate oo the Atlantic as the general theatre, but particularly upon the waters of the Chesepeake Bay, nieditating the capture of Washington City and of Baltimore, and then, by a sudden movement, to seize upon New Orlears, and thus control the Missiasippi through its mouths, no a compensation for their failure to master it at its head aprings.

The hirst approach of the flotilla met with an unexpected check from old Commodore Barney (a gallant old salt, who once paid Frankfort the compilment of a visit), who gave chese, and took chase, upon suedry interesting nautical scrimnages. Bat Barney was an amphibious salt. Like Gen. Nelson, he wea first rate upon sea, and no mean customer on land, as smbs-quently apmages. Bat Barney was an amproved the Cockburn, and no mean customer on land, as subsequently appeared in his drawing up of bis marines at Bladensburg. The British marines, under Admirel Cockburn, and the coldiers, under Gen. Ross, succeeded in reaching Washington City. What they did there, or how they got thore, is not within the purview of these sketches. Suffice It to say, that all the fighting that was done on our side was done by old Barney and his marines. We remember, when a hoy at Princeton Collegs, being exceedingly amused by receiving a most graphic eccount from a fellow-classmate, of the name of Clement Cox, who, as a boy, saw the retreat of exceedingly amused by receiving a most grephic eccount from a fellow-classmate, of the name of Clement Cox, who, as a boy, saw the retreat of Winder's forces, how scared everyoody seemed to be, and how the soldlers would pitch their guns into the river as they crossed the bridge.

The British, emboldened by their capture of the Federal city, made their next movement upon Baltimore—an important commercial city—important from its connection with Western trads. In September, they appeared at the mouth of the Patepsco, within fourteen miles of Baltimore, with a fleet end transporte amounting to fifty sails. They ianded at North I oint six thousand of Wellington's Spain formed veterans, and, under the command of Gen. Ross, made a march upon the city. In this sdvance they were headed by the American militia, end a battle was fought at the Point, not far from Ba timore, in which the Bitish were regulsed, with the less of their commander, Gen. Ross. It is a little curious humbles and catebration of the victory at Baltimore. He gave, as a toast, "Ebony and Topaz—Gen. Ross posthumous cost-of-aims, and the American militia man who gave it." Nobody at the table underslood the toast, and of course there was a general silence until Mr. Adams arose and seid: Since the hattle of Baltimore the family of General Ross have put noon their shield—Ebony.

a song that will endore till the English is numbered among the dead languages.

Folid at Baltimore, and having lost their distinguished, commander, the next movement was upon New Orleans, and this was really the main object of the expedition—the others being incidental, and undertaken more with a view to hide the main purpose than with any expectation of permenent benefit.

Upon the fall of General Rosa, the exclusive command devolved upon Sir Edward Packenhem, the urother-in-law of the Duke of Wellington, and greatly distinguished in the war on the Peninsula. His troops, too, were men who had teen et Talavera, Saragossa, and Badejas, accusteme to exalling perpendicular walls by frail, extemporized ladders, or marching over fosses hiled with fascines borne on their own hacks, or with the dead bodies of the slain. They were called Inviocibles, and their deeds heve been rendered historic by the graphic pen of Napier, their companion in arms.

The people of New Orleans, ac early as the first The people of New Orleans, as early as the mass of September, became convinced that a formidable attack against their city was meditated, and Governor Ciaiborne, greatly aided by Mr. Edward Livingston, set ebout making such preparations as was in his power to meet it. The means at his lumediate command were few, consisting at his extraction of the voluntary companies of the tions es was in his power to meet it. The means at his immediate command were few, consisting almost entirely of the voluntary companies of the city, and some compacies of free negroes who readly enrolled themselves in its defence. The Secretary of War called npon Kentneky and Tennesee for a considerable force to be sent to Lonisiana with ell possible despatch. General Jackson, who was in command of the Southern Devision, and eletioned at Mobile, repaired to New Orleans, taking with him such Tennessee troops as he had, end about one thousand regulers About the 5th of December, the British fleet, consisting of sixty sail or more, asp ared off the coast to the East of the Mississippi. Commodore Patterson despatched five gnuboats, under Lieut. Catesby Jones, to observe the movements of the enemy. These gueboats, sier and obstinate resistance, were all captured by the enemy, who had forty barges and one thousand two hundred men. We loat in that navel affair forty killed and wourded. movement was to order out a battalion of colored men, ucder Laceste, with the Feliclana dragoons, to cover the road from the lake to the city. Lafitte, the Barratarian pirate, now joined General Jackson with five hundred men (Phie Lafitte was the same man that Captain Russell, of this county, kicked out of a fushionable ball-room in New Orleass). Notwithstanding all precautions, however, the British effected a landing by the Bayon Bienveon, near Villere's plantation, seven miles helow New Orleans. As soon as Jeckson was apprised of this, he resolved on an immediate attack. The expedition was under the command of Gen. Coffee. The result was a temperary check Gen. Coffee. The result was a temporary check to the British, with the loss of twenty-four Americene killed, and one hundred and fifteen wounded and seventy four prieoners; the British loss was estimated at four hundred killed, woundloss was sestimated at four fundated kined, wounded, and missing. There were various squatic resconnters, not necessary to be mentioned here, but which troubled the enemy very much. Coffee's attack Inspired them with an untimely caution, end this enabled Jackson to make a fortified camp. He used cotton bales for the embrasures of his enemed line of decamp. He need cotton bales for the embrasures of his cannon, and not for his general line of defence as ie commonly understood. A skirmish took place about the 1st of Jenuary, in which we lost claven killed and twenty-three wousded. On the 4th of Jannary, Generul Jackson was joined by the Kentneky levies—nominally commanded by Gen. Thomas, hut reelly by General

Adair.

The British, at this date, had effected a concentration of all their forces, which, in the aggregate, amounted to very little short of fifteen thousend men, acd those of the best coldiere of the Continent. An attack was imminent, and Gen. Jeckson prepared for it. His front line was a straight line of one thousend unfantry and artilleriste. He had a ditch five feet deep in front, and eight batteries, the must efficient of which tilleriste. He had a ditch five feet deep in front, and eight batteries, the most efficient of which was commanded by Capt. Spotte, the fether of Mrs George W. Triplett, of Frankfort. He also posted a battery of fifteen guee on the opposite eide of the river, and r the cemmand of General Morgan, with the Louisiana militie and a smal detachment of Kennucky troops. On the morning of the 8th of January, 1815, the British made a simultaneous attack on both sides of the river—Colonel Thornton on the right bank, and General Packenham, with twelve thousand men, in two divisions, ander Gibbs and Kenn and a in two divisions, nuder Gibbs and Kean, and a reserve, under Lambert, npon Jeckeon's main front. One of the chlef pointe in the events of the week which have of late come under notice in the Discussion Halls is the state of Ireland. The recent agrarian murders have elarmed the landlords, and Eoglend and Ireland stand face to face, each calling the other bad names. All this in half a year, and yet you steer at our delay. First thirty days, then sixty, then ninety, and now you say we ask you sgaln to wait. Be it so. Davis rested eight months before Washington, yet you complain if we stop eight days before Richmond. England is the last nation to talk of despatch. The only energy I have seen yon show was on the Trent question. You say we ought to have closed the war months ago. Look over your own shou'der at George the Third. It was a flat speech from the President of the United States. But, just here, we can chronicle a flatter, from the same high source. After Mr. Adams became President he was invited to a public diner in Baltimore, which he accepted—the same et which he gave the toest ebove alluded to. The corporation of the city had heard that there was, somewhere in Maryland, an old gentleman who had graduated with Mr. Adams in the same class at Cambridge. They hunted him up, smi brought him, with some expensa, to the dimer, expecting, of course, to see a sensation. The committee introduced the cld man to Mr. Adams as his early classmate, expecting to witness a sensation at the reunicn of these old boy-companions. Judge of their disappointment wheu Mr. Adeus, after listening to the emphatic declaration that he and the gentleman they were introducing to him were classmates, simply replied: "Well, whnt of that!" No wonder such a man, with all his diplomatic training acd bis great scholastic attainments, never touched the American heart. A man who had no more teet than to say "what of that," on such an occasi in was ignorunt of the pular heart, or cared but little for it.
